

Dear Editor,

Just a postscript to the Femme Fatal article (spelling error deliberate). Women in the Australian army were given full combat status about seven weeks ago. Until then they could fire in the course of peace keeping etc. but could not actively engage in combat. We now have real women warriors! For good or bad...

Dear friends,

Greetings from the YWCA of Pakistan.

I have been able to read Women in Action and have found it very informative. As I am working and fighting for the rights of the women and dealing with the same issues relating to the stories, I would appreciate it if you could kindly keep my name on your mailing list and send the magazine and other materials regularly.

Thank you very much, with all the best wishes.

Yours sincerely,
Victoria Bhajan, National General
Secretary, YWCA of Pakistan

(Your name is already in our mailing list. We will be sending you our regular publications. Ed.)

Hello!

I have read some of the articles in your website like those in the "Archive" and Women In Action sections and would like to inquire about the permission for reprints.

Specifically, I am planning to have the chosen articles reprinted in a web-based magazine or e-zine. However, I have also read the following statement which appears below the articles, "... Permission is also given to mirror this document on WWW servers" and do not exactly know what it means or implies. My question is: Can I reprint the articles in full in my e-zine? Of course, the source will be properly acknowledged.

Hoping to hear from you soon.
Thank you.

Sincerely,
Julie T. Chan,
Pinoy-Rin.Net Volunteer

(Yes, you may reprint the articles. Thanks. Ed.)

Dear Colleagues,

Please find attached information about our organisation. Probably we could find some ways of cooperation.

Also we would be very grateful if you can send us more detailed information about your organisation.

Looking forward to hearing from you soon.

Many thanks and best regards,
Aimira Urustemova
Centre for Women in Media of
Central Asia (WIMCA)
National Co-ordinator for Kyrgyzstan

(You must have received our reply by now which was earlier sent to you via e-mail. Thank you for the information about your organisation. Ed.)

Dear Madamme,

With all due respect, We would like to introduce our organisation. KADI is a non-government, non-profit organisation whose mission is to facilitate information exchange/dissemination to small groups in rural areas which we are linked to. KADI is working for socio-economic development, women's rights and peace, water and sanitation, micro-finance, agriculture [extension], enviromental sustainability, social justice and reproductive health issues.

Our major concern and target are the rural marginalised women, who are victims of deprivation, isolation, disease, poverty, ignorance and backwardness.

The purpose of this letter therefore, is to network with your organisation. In so doing, it will put us in a better position to increase equality, effectiveness through sharing knowledge, experience and exchange of information. If you have a mailing list or database, I would appreciate being included in it so that we can receive your information regularly.

We are interested in knowing more about your organisation and hope you will send information guidelines or reports.

I will be very grateful if our request is kindly met. Thank you for your anticipated cooperation and assistance.

Hope to hear from you.

Yours faithfully,
Job Musoke, Secretary General
KADI, Uganda
